CULTURAL PSYCHIATRY ROUNDS

Developing a Toolkit for a Cultural Ecosocial Approach to Clinical Assessment and Formulation

Laurence J. Kirmayer, MD

Distinguished James McGill Professor

Director Division of Social and Transcultural Psychiatry McGill University

March 26, 2026

1:30 PM – 3:00 PM (ET)

Amphitheatre (ICFP), 4333 Côte-St-Catherine Rd., Montreal QC H3T 1E4

IN PERSON ONLY

Learning objectives

- Identify the major domains of the CES Formulation Outline and recognize how social determinants, cultural identity, and ecosocial niche function as active causal variables in psychiatric presentations.
- Describe the concept of feedback loops and leverage points in clinical formulation, and recognize how a CES summary formulation links maintaining mechanisms to multilevel treatment planning.
- Reflect on the limitations of individual-level explanatory models and consider how naming structural and social determinants explicitly — without pathologizing social conditions — could change the formulations they currently use in practice.
