Hybrid

Young adults' language, meanings, and assumptions about mental health.

Learning objectives

- Describe how young adults conceptualize mental health in their own words.
- Identify factors young adults consider important determinants of their mental health.
- Explain how young adults perceive mental health diagnoses.

Yifan Wang, MSc is a Research Coordinator with the DREAM BIG consortium and a PhD candidate in Psychoeducation at Université de Montréal. Her doctoral work draws on focus-group research with young adults to examine how mental health, diagnosis, and well-being are understood in everyday language and experience.
